COAT OF ARMS

One of the most ancient of the several coats of arms of the Stanley family is that described as follows (Burke, General Armory, 1884):

ARMS.—Argent, on a bend azure three stags' heads cabossed or."

CREST.—"A Stag's head and neck couped argent, attired or, the tongue hanging out gules."

MOTTO.—"Sans changer," meaning "Without changing

PREFACE

In my childhood days, I was an ardent listener whenever my father and mother, William C. and Harriett S. Stanley, would discuss the genealogy of our family.

After they passed away, their genealogy books were left to the care of my brothers, John W. and Arthur W. Stanley; but they were very busy men and had little time to spend on tracing kinship.

Not until they, too, passed on and my health failed, did I ever think of trying to take a stem and a few saplings and climb as far as I could in what seemed to be an impenetrable forest.

It has cost a great deal of time and money, but it has been worth it, and I have enjoyed meeting and visiting, by letter so many of my kinsmen.

I know that many of you have gone to the attic, pulled out your old family Bibles, and spent much time copying dates and information enabling me to make this stem and few saplings grow into a Family Tree, with the roots well established in the 17th century, and the trunk taking form in the early part of the 18th century, in the year 1729.

The branches and the twigs now reach from coast to coast.

By precept and goodly example, by timely advice and Christian counsel, our loyal forefathers nurtured and faithfully cultivated the tender plants, giving to our many communities one of their most sturdy and productive families.

My own compilation of facts is prefaced by the statement secured from the Media Research Bureau, and is an authentic, but general, sketch.

So, with appreciation for the Christian homes built on the solid foundation of love, I dedicate this book.

TO

THE MEMORY OF OUR FOREFATHERS.

THE NAME AND FAMILY OF

STANLEY

COMPILED BY THE MEDIA RESEARCH BUREAU,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

The name of "Stanley" is believed to have been of local origin and to mean "A Stoney Meadow", being first given to a place answering that description and later taken therefrom by its first bearer because of his residence at Stanley.

There are now ten parishes of the name in various parts of England, but some of them are of recent origin. The name is found on ancient records in the various spellings of Stonely, Stanleigh, Stanley, Stannley, Stanely, and Stanley—of which the last is the generally accepted form of today.

The family bearing this name was first settled in the County of Stafford, whence it spread to the Countys of Wilts, Oxford, York, Lancaster, Chester, Derby, Somerset, Cumberland, Sussex, Nottingham, Middlesex, Devon, Norfolk, and North and South Hampton.

The ancient family of Stanley traces its descent from William de Alditheley, son of Adam de Alditheley, son of another of the same name, who accompanied William the Conqueror into England in the Norman invasion of 1066. This William de Alditheley married Joan, daughter of Thomas de Stonely of ancient Saxon family, and received as her dowry the Manor of Thalk in Staffordshire, which land he exchanged for the lands of Stoneley, whence he took his name.

This William de (Alditheley) Stoneley, or Stanley, was the father of John (who died without issue), and Sir Adam Stanley, who had a son, Sir William Stanley, who married Joan, daughter of Sir Philip de Barville, and had issue by her of Sir John and Adam. Of these two sons, Sir John acquired the title of Lord of Stourton and married Mebelle, daughter of Sir James Hlausket, and was the father by her of Sir William and John, of whom the first married Alice Massey, my whom he was the father of Sir William of Hooten, in Cheshire, and Sir John, Lord-Deputy of Ireland, and Henry.

Sir William Stanley of Hooten, (Cheshire County, married Margery de Hooten, and was the father of Sir Rowland Stanley, who was succeeded by his great-grandson, Sir William, who married Charlotte, daughter of Sir Richard Molyneux. This last mentioned Sir William was succeeded by his oldest son, Sir Rowland, who married Anna Paston in the early eighteenth century.

Sir John Stanley, Lord-Deputy of Ireland and younger brother of the Sir William of Hooton, was the ancestor of the Earl's of Derby and was married in the latter part of the fourteenth century to Isabel, daughter of Sir Thomas Latham. They were the parents of, among others, Sir John, who was the father by his wife, Isobel Harrington, of Sir Thomas, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, who married Joan Goushill, and had Thomas, Second Lord Stanley and first Earl of Derby, who married Eleanor Nevill, daughter of the Earl of Warwick, and had issue by her of, among others, a son who continued the line of the Earl's of Derby, and of Sir George, who married Joan Strange, and had Sir James.

This Sir James married Ann Hart and was the father by her of Henry Stanley, who married Margaret Stanley and had Edward, who married Isobel, daughter of Sir Peter Warburton, and had Henry, who was the father by his wife, Mary Cropper, of a son named Edward. This Edward was the father of the emigrant brothers Thomas and John Stanley, who came to Virginia in the latter part of the seventeenth century, and will be further mentioned below.

There were also prominent families of this name descended from Sir John Stanley of Cumberland County in the year 1347, who was the progenitor of a long and illustrious line of Stanleys in that place, and from John Stanley of the County of Kent, who descended from the Lancashire branch.

This last mentioned John Stanley was the father of a son named Thomas who had a son William, who was the father of John, who married Dorothy Totesham and had John, Thomas and William, of whom the last named married Audrey Elstone and was the father by her of Thomas, William, Dorothy, and perhaps others.

Prominent in the British Isles, where many lines of the Stanleys were of the Nobility and landed Gentry, the family was well represented among the earliest settlers in Colonial America.

The first emigrants of this name to America, the brothers John, Timothy and Thomas, are asserted by some family historians to have been descended from the last mentioned of the family, but this can not be definitely ascertained. These three emigrants set sail for New England in the year 1634, but the brother John died during voyage, leaving two children, John (who later made his home at Farmington, Conn.) and Ruth, to be raised by their Uncles.

Of the other two emigrants, Timothy made his home at Cambridge, Mass. and was probably the father by his wife, Elizabeth, of Timothy, Elizabeth, Abigail, Caleb, Lois, and Isaac; and

Thomas resided first at Lynn, Mass. and later at Hartford, Conn. Timothy and Hadley, Mass., and was the father by his wife, Bennet, of, Nathaniel, Hannah, Mary, and Sarah. ~~and Thomas~~ ^{and Thomas}

Another early emigrant was Christopher Stanley (possibly a descendent of the Cumberland branch of the family, in which the name of Christopher frequently occurs), who made his home at Boston in the year 1635. He possibly had issue by his wife, Susanna, although no definite records of any children have been found.

The before-mentioned Virginia emigrants, Thomas and John Stanley, came over in the latter part of the seventeenth century. Thomas was the father of James, Thomas, John and possibly others. This James Stanley's record is the first in this compilation.

Sir John Stanley, second Deputy of Ireland and younger brother of the Sir William of Hoaten, was the ancestor of the Earl's of Derby and was married in the later part of the fourteenth century to Isabel, daughter of Sir Thomas. They were the parents of, among others, Sir John, who was the father by his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Peter Warburton, of Sir John, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, who married Joan, daughter of Sir Peter Warburton, second Lord Stanley and first Earl of Derby, who married Eleanor Nevil, daughter of the Earl of Warwick, and had issue by her of, among others, a son who continued the line of the Earl's of Derby, and Sir James, who married Joan Strange, and Sir James.

This Sir James married Ann Hart and was the father by her of Henry Stanley, who married Margaret Stanley and had Edward, who married Isobel, daughter of Sir Peter Warburton, and Sir Henry, who was the father by his wife, Mary Cropper, of a son named Edward. This Edward was the father of the emigrant brothers Thomas and John Stanley, who came to Virginia in the latter part of the seventeenth century, and will be further mentioned below.

There were also prominent families of this name descended from Sir John Stanley of Cumberland County in the year 1347, who was the progenitor of a long and illustrious line of Stanleys in that place, and from John Stanley of the County of Kent, who descended from the Lancashire branch.

The last mentioned John Stanley was the father of a son named Thomas who had a son William who was the father of John, who married Dorothy Totesham and had John, Thomas and William, of whom the last named married Aundrey Elstone and was the father by her of Thomas, William, Dorothy, and perhaps others.

Prominent in the British Isles, where many lines of the Stanleys were of the Nobility and landed Gentry, the family was well represented among the earliest settlers in Colonial America.

Sir John Stanely, Lord-Deputy of Ireland and younger brother of the Sir William of Hoaten, was the ancestor of the Earl's of Derby and was married in the later part of the fourteenth century to Isabel, daughter of Sir Thomas. They were the parents of, among others, Sir John, who was the father by his wife, Elizabeth Harrington, of Sir Thomas, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, who married Joan Gough, and was second Lord Stanley and first Earl of Derby, who married Eleanor Nevil, daughter of the Earl of Warwick, and had issue by her of, among others, a son who continued the line of the Earl's of Derby, and Sir James, who married Joan Strange, and Sir James.

This Sir James married Ann Hart and was the father by her of Henry Stanley, who married Margaret Stanley and had Edward, who married Isobel, daughter of Sir Peter Warburton, and Sir James, who was the father by his wife, Mary Cropper, of a son named Edward. This Sir James was the father of the emigrant brothers Thomas and John Stanley, who came to Virginia in the latter part of the seventeenth century, and will be further mentioned below.

The before mentioned Virginia emigrants, Thomas and John Stanley, came over in the latter part of the seventeenth century. Thomas was the father of James, Thomas, John and possibly others. This James Stanley's record is the first in this compilation.

5. William Stanley, Married Rebecca Clemmons. Our line of Stanleys are descendants of this William Stanley and Rebecca Clemmons. If family tradition is correct, this is our William F. Stanley who married Mahala Burnes in 1836. However, if U.S. Census are correct then our William F. who married Mahala Burnes is the son of William and Rebecca. It does no matter which is correct; we are still descendants of William and Rebecca Clemmons.

The line will continue from here for William F. Stanley and Mahala Burnes.

6. Rebecca Stanley, Married Joseph Unthank.

7. Abel Stanley, Married Rachel Royle. Able was born 10-8-1777.

Stanley family research

This maybe where the name changed that has been handed down thru the family. It was handed down that the Daniel name was changed but I failed to find proof up until now.

The following is the changeing of the name Stanley

Adam de Alditheley had a son Adam Jr born in Ireland in 900's. Adam Jr married and his son William de Alditheley was born in 1030 in Ireland. William came to England in 1066.

William de Alditheley married Joan de Stonley (daughter of Thomas an ancient Saxon family.) Joan received her dowery the Manor of Thald in Staffordshire which land William de Alditheley exchanged for the lands of the de Stonely estate, whence he took the de Stonley name. He changed the name from de Stoneley to Stanley.
